Tune in Star Dreck tonight!

August's annual celestial treat, the Perseid meteor shower, is due to arrive tonight. And experts are predicting that it might be another "Storm of the Century," with a once-in-a-lifetime concentration of meteors (actually small, fiery bits of heavenly dust and debris). If the professional star gazers are on target, and the clouds clear in time, viewers may be able to see hundreds of "shooting stars" an hour. Start looking around 8:45 p.m., about 45 degrees above the northeast horizon. No special equipment or eye protection is required, but the best viewing will be in areas with little or no artificial light to dilute Mother Nature's display. If clouds spoil the show tonight, there should still be stragglers shooting through the sky tomorrow evening.

Davis Park

Supporters hope kids will be playing by fall

By MICHAEL DANIELS

By late September, local pre-schoolers should have a new place to play and socialize.

Marci Baker of Newry told the Bethel selectmen Monday night that supporters of the Davis Park playground have raised nearly $15,000, enough money to go ahead with the first phase of the project.

The selectmen gave their unanimous approval to the plan, which is scheduled to go before the town Planning Board tonight (Wednesday).

The first phase includes setting a vinyl-covered chain-link fence around the entire play area, covering the ground with wood or bark chips and installing a play structure suitable for pre-school age children.

The play structure will include stairs, slides, tire net, suspension bridge, and play platform with "steering wheels."

Baker, who with Marie Keane of Bethel has led the playground effort, said the structure will be purchased from Childrens Playground of Boston. She and Keane had visited a number of Childrens Playground projects in northern New England, she said, and found them to be high quality and well suited to the Davis Park site.

The playground will be put together with volunteer labor, Baker said.

A second phase of the playground, which will include swings and a play structure for toddlers, is planned for next year, she said, but will be dependent on a successful fund-raising campaign over the winter.

44 DEGREES 24 MINUTES 50.6 SECONDS NORTH by 70 degrees 47 minutes 13.3 seconds west—at least according to the eight satellites Ken Markley was able to tap into for a high-tech fix of Davis Park. Markley and his son, Gabe, were demonstrating the Global Positioning System technology they are using this summer to plot the trail intersections and about a mile of boundary of the Caribou-Speckled Mountain Wilderness Area in the Evans Notch Ranger District of the White Mountain National Forest. Due to scrambling of the satellites' signal by the Department of Defense, initial fixes (like the Davis Park coordinates given here) are accurate only to a rough range of 100 to 1,000 meters. To achieve greater precision (down to within two to five feet) additional information must be later downloaded from a computer in Orono, and the local readings adjusted to correct for the scrambling.

Getting a fix on the wilderness

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Caribou-Speckled Mountain Wilderness Area is off limits to anything more modern than hand tools and draft animals, but the limits of the area itself are now being charted by the most advanced high-tech equipment.

Eleven thousand miles over our heads, Department of Defense satellites float in stationary orbit over the Earth; deep in the Caribou-Speck woods, Ken Markley locks onto signals sent out by those satellites and uses them to plot out wilderness trail intersections and boundaries.

Markley, who runs a more traditional surveying business in Kittery, expects to spend 25 days in the woods this summer plotting 12 trail intersections and about a mile of the 12,000-acre wilderness area's boundary.

According to Evans Notch assistant district ranger Wayne Millen, GPS was chosen as a less expensive alternative to traditional transit-based surveying methods.

Caribou-Speck presents a surveying challenge, Mullen said, because the lines delineating the area exist on the map approved by Congress in 1990, but they don't follow obvious topographical features or established private land boundaries.

And trails in the area have never been accurately charted, he said, and most cannot be identified from aerial photographs.

"The first priority was to map trail locations," Mullen said, "but we also need the information for management purposes." For example, he said, the Forest Service has a timber sale planned on land adjacent to the wilderness area and needs to be sure the harvesting activities don't overlap into the wilderness area.

Under the arrangement worked out with Markley, the Forest Service first "digitizes" trail and boundary coordinates from computer maps of Caribou-Speck. Then Markley takes his equipment into the woods to find, and mark, those coordinates on the ground.

But, thanks in part to the Cold War, it's not quite that simple. Markley's initial fixes will locate points on the Earth to an accuracy of roughly 100 to 1,000 meters—not accurate enough for the Forest Service's purposes.

The satellite fixes are capable of much greater accuracy, but the Department of Defense scrambles the signal a bit, to limit their military usefulness to potential adversaries, including terrorists.

In order to get closer to the mark, Markley must come out of the woods and download, by modem, data gathered simultaneously at a ground station in Orono.

By comparing the two sets of data, he can correct for the scrambling and calculate the positions more precisely.

Markley then provides the Forest Service with range-and-bearing information (comparing the rough and corrected fix) that allows trail crews to fine tune the fix on the ground.

Once the process is complete, Millen said, permanent markers will be established.

The Caribou-Speck survey work is being done in conjunction with the College of Natural Resources, Forestry and Agriculture at the University of Maine, the Thompson School of Applied Science at the University New Hampshire and Trimble Navigation, a California company that has loaned the expensive equipment used for the project.

The survey will cost approximately $5,000, Millen said. Funding was included in a recent Senate appropriations bill sponsored by Maine Sen. George Mitchell.

There are no current plans to map the entire perimeter of the wilderness area, Millen said, since doing so would be costly and would serve little practical purpose.

Board split on how much kids schooled at home can participate

By WENDY HANSCOM

SAD44 directors were sharply divided Monday evening over how much access home-schooled children should have to regular classroom and extra-curricular activities.

According to school officials, two families in the district home-schooled last year and four families are planning to teach their children at home this year.

Monday night the directors debated a draft of home-schooling policies prepared by the board's Policy Committee. (Superintendent Ron Jenkins refused to release a copy of the draft to the reporters present Monday night.)

Jenkins said there are no state laws restricting home-schoolers from participating in any school activities, but he had some reservations regarding the extent of any participation—especially interscholastic sports.

"I feel like what this says is, 'If you don't want to play our way, you can't play at all.'"

BRAD THIBODEAU
Andover Director

"My personnel opinion is that students in this school system have to meet strict sports participation guidelines," Jenkins said, "and we have no control of the standards for home-schoolers. What could happen is that a home-schooled student might not be meeting the same standards as a student in the system is meeting."

"I would not want to be looking into the eyes of parent, who's child let's say gets an F in algebra and has to sit out a season, while I had a home-schooled student (on the team) that I have no control over. There's no accountability."

Andover Director Brad Thibodeau said although he acknowledged concerns over sports participation, home-schooled children should be allowed access to the rest of the dis-

Greenwood Selectmen want junkyard closed

By DUANE HAYES

Greenwood selectmen have turned over closing down a junkyard near Hicks Pond to the town's attorney.

The junkyard is located Greenwood City at the head of the pond. It is owned by Malcomb McLean, according to Selectman Carl Curtis.

Several unlicensed vehicles are located on the site, which has no fence to make them less conspicuous from the road, Curtis said at last week's selectmen's meeting. The junkyard was also established without permission from the town, Curtis said.

Any site with more than three unlicensed vehicles in storage is defined in the town's ordinances as a junkyard and requires a license. Some sort of barrier is also required to shield the site from passing vehicles and pedestrians.

"We have done all we can as selectmen and now it is in the hands of our Code Enforcement Officer, Sam Timberlake and attorney Geoffrey Hole," Curtis said.

Selectmen also said last week they are planning to schedule a special Town Meeting to raise money to purchase a new town truck.

Road Commissioner Alan Seames told selectmen the town can purchase a 1994 Ford truck with body, plow, front pump and wing for $52,000 from Ripley & Fletcher in South Paris.

"The bare truck would be $33,815, with body $38,350 and with a plow at $11,000, a front pump for $1,000 and a wing for $1,650," he said. "It gives us the grand total of $52,000."

The town has $35,000 in its truck account and will need to raise an additional $17,000 for the purchase.

Local rescuers again set off at night

By MARY DELAMATER

and CITIZEN STAFF

Three youths from Camp Omni in Poland became seriously ill while on a survival hike in Mahosuc Notch over the weekend, but had improved significantly by the time medical rescuers got to them early Monday morning, according to Maine Game Warden Norman Lewis.

Rescue and park personnel from Tri-Town Search and Rescue, Bethel Search and Rescue, Grafton Notch State Park and Outward Bound in Newry hiked in to Mahosuc Mountain late Sunday evening to evaluate the condition of the three sick campers.

The three were part of a team of 10 campers and two adult counselors from the former Samantha Smith World Peace Camp. They were on a survival hike along the Appalachian Trail in western Oxford County.

"The campers started to come down with stomach cramps," Lewis said. "One started to vomit and then he started to complain of blurred vision. The counselor got quite concerned; where it was a survival hike they were eating vegetation," and Counselor Mike Melt thought they might have ingested something poisonous, he added.

The three sick youths were identified as Cedric Godnig, 12, Frantz Andersew, 14, and Graham

ROCKY MOLLYOCKETT DAY

To the Editor:

The Community Chemical Awareness Team members have several concerns with Mollyockett Day activities this year. A letter has been sent to the Lions and discussion with Chief Bellman has taken place. We feel this day should be one for family fun and entertainment encouraging all ages to wish to return year after year to Bethel.

We understand the need to offer activities for our young adults that they will participate in and enjoy. There must be some way to do this and still leave the Common accessible to people of all ages, while maintaining acceptable standards and appropriate language.

Rock music played on the Common throughout the day is inappropriate for encouraging family-oriented activities that will promote attendance at Mollyockett Day year after year. Others kinds of music should be encouraged so that people with more "traditional" tastes in music will feel welcome. We are hoping that future plans will include renewed efforts to create a family, chemical-free atmosphere.

ANSWERING THE CALL

To the Editor:

Once again I got the call. On Sunday, Aug. 8, I received a call from the B.E.A.R.S. The time was approximately 10 p.m. The call? We're headed out into Grafton. The hike? Will take them three hours to get in. Would I get together some type of muffins, donuts and coffee as it looked like a long night for the searchers? Yes I would. I said.

When a call like this comes in to me, (the last one being for a fire on Main Street and before that a call at 3:30 a.m. to hike up a mountain looking for survivors of a plane crash) these people need to know they can call someone for that little bit that will get them through the night. They know they can call me and I will get it together for them, but what this town needs is an auxiliary service just for this purpose, a service that when a call goes out an auxiliary service would go into action to make sandwiches, get coffee or muffins. They have to be prepared for that call no matter what time of the night.

The American Legion in Bethel has an auxiliary made up of the wives, children and grandchildren of spouses that fought in the war. I would think that the spouses of the volunteers on both the B.E.A.R.S. and the fire department would get together and try to come up with some type of an emergency canteen just for times like last night.

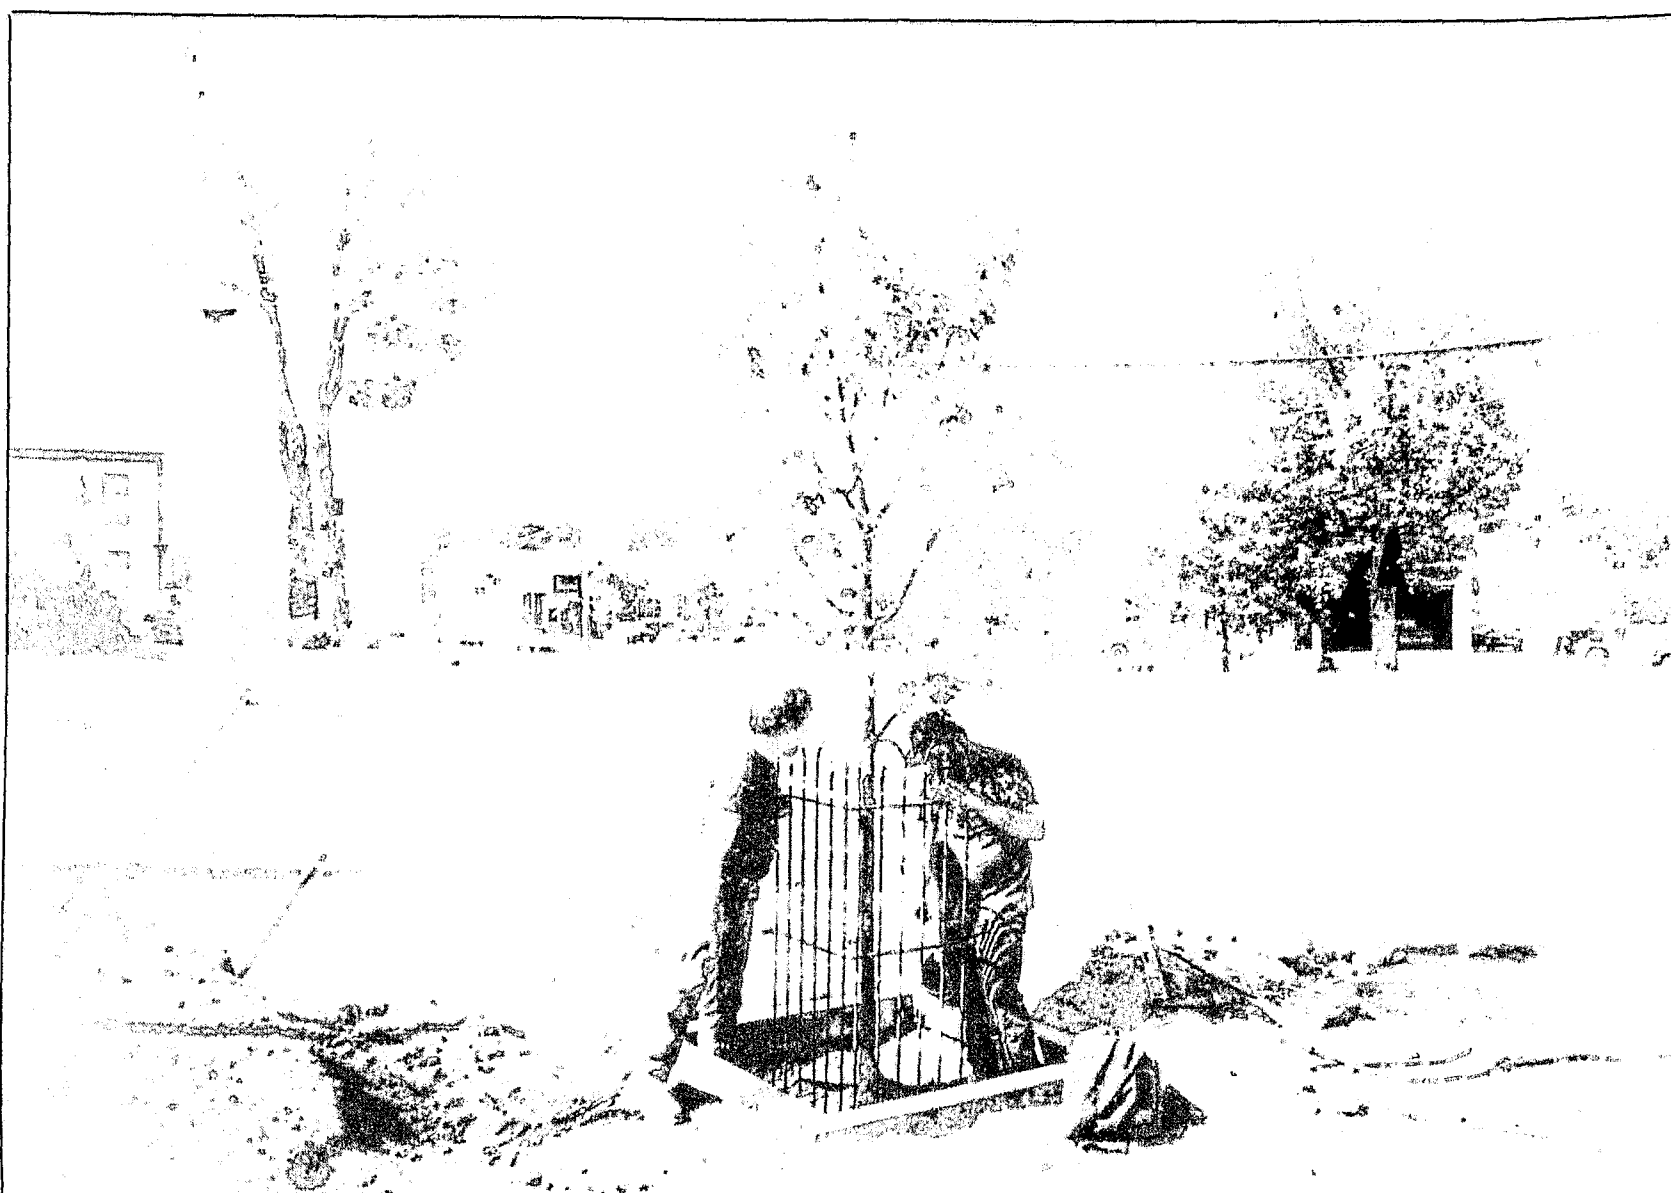

Once again I would like to thank the following for their "On the spur of the moment help." Bethel Bed & Breakfast—Robert K. Scott, the Bethel Inn & Country Club and Laura and Pat, the Bethel Savings Bank, L'Auberge-Werner Kohlmeier, and the Sudbury Inn—Jack and Mitzi. Thank you and I know the B.E.A.R.S. thank you also. Once again, you have assisted me when the call came in. Thank you.

MEETING HOUSE CONCERT

To the Editor:

The old-fashioned concert, "Through the Years with Music," at the Middle Intervale Meeting House on Sunday, July 25, featuring the many local and area performers in music of the last 175 years was a resounding success. With over 250 music enthusiasts filling the beautiful little church to standing room capacity, they tapped their toes and clapped their hands, joining in the finale with all participants singing, "Let there be Peace on Earth." The Middle Intervale valley rang out with the sound of music.

PLANTING TIME ON MAIN STREET—Richard Duka and Pat Gallant of Hanover Iron Works ready the wrought-iron tree guard that will protect a red oak planted at the corner of Vernon and Main streets. The oak is one of two trees deferred from last summer's planting program because of the construction work on lower Main Street. The second tree, a white ash, has been planted at the lower end of the street, also on the east side. In addition, four new trees, a red maple and three flowering crabapples have been planted on the west side to replace the trees taken down when the street was widened last year. The trees were planted by the Bethel Shade Tree Committee with assistance from the town Highway Department. The trees were purchased from Earth Design Associates/Unicorn Flower Shop.

West Bethel hydrant to come out

The selectmen also voted Monday to remove the dry hydrant located at the Newt's Landing canoe launch in West Bethel.

To replace the hydrant as a water source, the selectmen opted to look into installing an automatic fill valve on a 10,000-gallon cistern located near the West Bethel silo.

Bethel Fire Chief Jim Young and Assistant Chief Dave Brown told the selectmen that the dry hydrant had been clogged and unusable for at least 10 years.

"We've tried to blow it out a couple of years ago," Brown said, "but we've had no luck."

And even if the hydrant were working, Young said, its location strains the department's pumping capacity.

Young and Brown also noted that portable pumps could be used to pump river water from the canoe landing, though that might not be possible in the winter if the site is not plowed and the river is frozen.

Roy Newton, owner of the nearby Newton & Tebbels wood mill, had offered to contribute up to $1,000 to repair or replace the dry hydrant.

But Selectman John Thurston said, "It makes no sense to put another one back in if you're at a marginal location for what you're able to pull out."

The selectmen instead instructed Town Manager Madeleine Henley to explore installing an automatic fill valve on the nearby cistern. The cistern currently has a manual valve and is sometimes low or empty, according to the fire officials.

Lot kept, firetruck sold

The board also voted not to pursue the sale of a one-half-acre parcel of land to developer Carl Hansen.

The parcel is located on Main Street between the railroad tracks and the former Martha's Restaurant, which Hansen recently purchased and plans to expand or replace.

Hansen, who was not present Monday, had met with the selectmen at their previous meeting to discuss purchasing the property.

The selectmen, however, were not enthusiastic about selling. "The land stands to get even more valuable as things evolve down there," said Thurston, referring to the Victoria Station proposal.

Town Clerk Merton Brown also noted that two previous boards had turned down offers on the property, and he warned that getting a clear title could be a problem.

The property was taken by Bethel when the town cleaned it up after a 1972 structure fire, Brown said. But if a title search were undertaken, he warned, "I'd be afraid of what you'd find."

The selectmen agreed not to sell the parcel, and to come up with a more comprehensive policy on the sale of tax-acquired property.

As it now stands, the disposal of such property is entirely up to the discretion of the selectmen, under authority routinely granted each year at annual Town Meeting (that authority is intended to allow the selectmen to release lien-acquired property).

The board did agree to sell the town's 1960 Seagrave ladder truck, which has been on display by the wastewater treatment plant.

There were three bids on the truck. Fran Tyler and David Head jointly bid $300; Steven Hobbs bid $610; and Dr. Jim Hudson bid $3,450.

The selectmen agreed to sell the truck to Dr. Hudson.

New PD sergeant slot

The board also agreed unanimously with Henley's recommendation that the a sergeant's position be created on the Bethel Police Department.

Police Chief Dale Bellman has been arguing for such a position, she said, with the intention of promoting Officer Darren Tripp.

Henley said she was initially against the proposal because there was no money available for a raise to go with the promotion, but with the recent turnover in the most junior position on the force, more funds are now available, she said.

Last comes first

The selectmen also adopted a formal policy stating that late sewer, ambulance and property tax payments will be applied to the oldest outstanding bill on that account, unless otherwise prohibited by law.

The selectmen are now on their summer schedule and no further meetings are planned until Sept. 7.

trict's programs, including libraries, classroom courses and field trips.

Referring to the policy draft, Thibodeau said, "I feel like what this says is, 'If you don't want to play our way, you can't play at all.' I personally don't see any reason they can't participate in any part of the school system."

"I have a problem with parents who don't think the school system is good enough to get an education," responded Bethel director Jane Rolfe, "but then want their child to participate in other things."

Newry director Debbie Gilbert disagreed. "They're taxpayers and they have a right to use the facilities and the school," she said.

Because the issue generated several varying opinions, acting chairman Alison Aloisio recommended that directors attend last night's (Tuesday) Policy Committee meeting, when the issue was scheduled to be taken up again.

Payroll deduction computers

The board voted in favor Monday night of allowing SAD44 employees to purchase computers through a payroll deduction plan.

He proposed that all full-time personnel be able to purchase computers through special deals the superintendent's office can make with vendors.

Jenkins said the plan would allow district employees to purchase computers to work with at home and then bring their newly-acquired skills into the classroom.

Jenkins said there would be no cost to SAD44 and that the district's accountant had no problem with the plan.

Monday night the board also approved extending Special Education director Ann Holt's work year from 10 to 11 months and to pro-rate the salary accordingly.

Goodridge, 13. Lewis did not know their home addresses.

"He (Meli) was afraid that they had eaten something he hadn't recommended," the warden explained. "They were eating twigs, leaves and grass I guess. He thought the worst because they'd been eating the vegetation. We found out later there had been an outbreak of flu at the camp," which could be the reason for the illness.

"He responded correctly to what he perceived to be a grave threat to their health," Lewis said.

Meli left the encampment on top of Mahoosuc Mountain about 4:30 p.m. and hiked miles to the Success Pond Road in New Hampshire, eventually getting to Berlin to call for help and notify the camp.

Maine State Police alerted Lewis of Greenwood, about 8 p.m., after receiving a call from Camp Omni staff.

Between 20 and 30 people, including Meli, Lewis, Camp Omni personnel, Jim Morrissey of Outward Bound, members of the Appalachian Mountain Club and rescuers met at the Mahoosuc Notch Trail head off Success Pond Road about midnight. Six people, including two from the camp, were selected for their speed and physical fitness to climb the mountain and assess the conditions of the three boys.

"When the medical team got there the cramps had pretty much subsided" and the medical team reported at 2:30 a.m. the boys were in stable condition and improving and would not require medical personnel to stay overnight, said Lewis.

The campers hiked down in the daylight Monday, Lewis said.

"I would say it was, for the most part, a very good level of cooperation among everybody involved," Lewis said.

THIS WEEK AT THE

Moses Mason House

More than 90 members of the Bethel Historical Society gathered with members of the Methodist Church to hear Arlene Brown assisted by Edna York outline some of the highlights of the history of the Methodist Church from its earliest days in the 1790s to the present.

Mrs. Brown, who has spent several months researching and preparing this presentation with the assistance of her husband Don, described the early days of this demonstration, the building of the first church in the 1860s, its destruction by a cyclone in 1891, the building of the present structure (which was dedicated in 1893, 100 years ago this year), the ministers, outstanding members of the congregation through the years, and some of the important changes to the church building. Mrs. Brown's talk was accompanied by a number of historical views projected on the screen set up for the evening. Edna York read some of the descriptions from contemporary newspaper accounts; of particular interest were those relating to the destruction of the first church and the building of the present one. Following the program, Mrs. Brown was congratulated by a number of those attending for her presentation; for those wishing a copy of her history, it will be published in a future edition of the Society's quarterly, "The Bethel Courier."

During the business portion of the meeting, President Jane Hosterman called on the Methodist minister, Rev. Henry Nickerson, for a prayer and thanked the Methodist Church for hosting this meeting of the Society. She announced that the Annual Fund was going well and read a letter from members from Texas who sent a particularly generous contribution. Marvin Ouwinga, Allan Fraser and Arlene Lowell were elected as the Nominating Committee to present a slate of officers and trustees for the annual meeting next month.

Speaker for the annual meeting was announced as Dr. Maurice M. Whitten, retired University of Southern Maine chemistry professor, who will speak on the role of science and technology during the Civil War. A 6:30 potluck supper will be held and the annual meeting will be at 7:30 on Sept. 2.

It's A Legal Question...

QUESTION: What is a "living trust," and should I consider having one?

Answer: With a living trust, a trustee holds and uses assets as directed by the person who established the trust (settlor). The settlor can also be the trustee, and can change the terms of his/her trust or terminate the trust. When the settlor dies, the trust can continue for the benefit of the settlor's spouse or children or be terminated. In most cases, there is little difference between a living trust and a standard will.

Although the settlor retains power over the assets, he is not the owner of the assets for probate purposes. Therefore, neither the trust nor the assets need be probated, a major selling point for living trusts. However, Maine has adopted the Uniform Probate Code, which greatly reduces probate costs and fees for ordinary estates. Even with a living trust you may still have to go to probate unless ALL of your property is in the trust or in some other non-probate form. Probate may be preferable when dealing with creditors and for resolving claims.

Living trusts don't result in inheritance tax savings compared to a property drafted will. In either case, you must file an estate tax return if your estate is worth more than $600,000.

A living trust can provide for management of your property if you become incapacitated. You can have the same results with a proper durable power of attorney, which should be part of a comprehensive estate plan.

So when are living trusts useful? Here are four examples: 1. If you own property in another state which does not have an inexpensive and simplified probate, such as Florida, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania; 2. If you want to keep the manner in which your property is distributed confidential; 3. When you have a large amount of money under management with a bank or other financial agent; 4. If you plan to change the beneficiary of your life insurance from time to time.

If you have any questions about living trusts or would like assistance to set up an estate plan that will suit your personal situation, please contact Albert J. Beliveau, Jr., Esq. or Michael Sheehan, Esq. at Preti, Flaherty, Beliveau and Pachios, 150 Congress St., Rumford, ME 04276, Tel. 364-4593.

From the Bethel Police log:

Tailgate, windows stolen; three arrested

Last Tuesday, Bethel Auto Sales reported the theft of a tailgate from a 1984 Chev. Fleetside pickup.

Also that day, a Bethel contractor told police two windows had been stolen from his Route 26 construction site. The missing windows were valued at $530.

Thursday a Main Street resident reported his black Labrador retriever with one blue eye and one brown eye was missing.

Friday, a local contractor reported that a work trailer at his Flat Road construction site had been broken into. Police also responded to a report Friday of a vandalized mailbox on the Flat Road.

Friday evening police investigated a report of a juvenile being assaulted by another juvenile on Main Street. All parties involved were instructed to fill out statements, which will be submitted to a juvenile intake officer.

Police also made three recent arrests.

Last Tuesday, police arrested Philip D. Snow, 31, of Rumford Point for operating under the influence of an intoxicating substance.

Wednesday police also arrested John Marshall, 39, of Bethel for operating under the influence of an intoxicating substance.

Shari Brown, 19, of Bethel was arrested Thursday on an outstanding warrant for failure to pay a fine.

Whitman Memorial open house

The Whitman Memorial Library in Bryant Pond will kick off a fundraising campaign for construction of a new addition with an open house on Aug. 14.

A new septic system will be installed at the library this fall, according to Town Manager Vern Maxfield. Library supporters also hope to raise enough money for a 25-by-40-foot addition, he said, which would double the size of the building.

The town had applied for a grant from the state for the addition, Maxfield said, but the application was turned down.

Saturday's open house will also feature food, yard sale tables, library tours and children's activities.

Refreshments will be provided by the Jackson-Silver American Legion Post Auxiliary. A sketch of the planned edition will also be on display.

So. Woodstock

By ANDREA P. WING

Andrea Wing will be the correspondent for the Bethel Citizen for the South Woodstock news. Olive Davis was for many years, and we will all miss her news column.

Andrea Wing was tendered a belated retirement get-together on Saturday, July 24 at Beverly Stevens' home--she is the County Executive Director of ASCS where Andrea worked for 21 years. Two parties had been canceled earlier because of sickness. Attending were friends and former co-workers from West Paris, Watford, Andover, Mechanic Falls, Buckfield, Bryant Pond, Rumford, also from Knox, Lincoln, Penobscot and Somerset County ASCA county offices. A cookout and many other goodies were enjoyed along with reminiscing and updating the news on everyone.

Sarah Hart is attending Barbizon's modeling classes in Portland until November. She's enjoying it and learning a lot.

Gordon and Lola Dillingham are camping at Alfred Bracy's in Oxford for a while following the death of Mr. Bracy's wife.

Beverly Dayton, Longwood, Fla., is visiting her mother and father, Claribel and Buster Poland for a while. Beverly's daughter Danielle is attending the Vacation Bible School with her cousins Megan and Randi while she's here.

Kyle Ryerson, who lives in Wayne, spent a couple of days with his grandmother Cleo Ryerson last week. Casey Ryerson, another grandson, came down to visit while Kyle was here. Kyle is 8 and Casey is 7. Cleo said they had a good time. We're sorry to hear that Larry and Pam Poland have moved out of So. Woodstock to West Paris.

Michelle and Dana Niro visited their grandparents, Willie and Joyce Hathaway, last week. Willie and Joyce camped at Cathedral Pines the weekend they were here. Their daughter Jane met them in Kittery on Friday to take Michelle and Dana back to Milford, Mass.

Karen and Denis Fortier with children Amy and Heather stopped in at their parents Willie and Joyce Hathaway's home on their way back from Wells Beach on Saturday. Joyce served them lunch before they returned home to Berlin, N.H.

Harry Hutchinson and Charlene, Crystal and Cylas Cash have gone to New York to visit Charlene's brother this weekend.

Esther Davis is recuperating from a cataract operation. She expects to get her new glasses on Aug. 10. She sees a lot of improvement already.

Laurene Appleby helped in the Vacation Bible School classes that were held at the Adventist Church last week. About 150 people, all ages, registered to attend.

Paul Jr. and Jennie Cox, John Cox, Jr., Casey Ryerson, Joshua and Stephanie Appleby along with their parents are attending a Farm Team picnic at the Bryant Pond ball field on Sunday.

Theresa and Mike Nadeau are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Ciara Monique. Theresa plans to return to work at the CMMC hospital cancer unit in a couple of weeks.

Cesar and Sandon Morgan and Heath Poland are racking blueberries at the Haverin blueberry fields, King Hill, So. Paris.

Charlie Lowe is improving after an operation on his neck. He's been out of work since last December. Charlie is returning to work for the state striping crew Monday. He said he is really excited about returning to work after such a long time.

Bethany Lowe attended Vacation Bible School last week.

Sawannah Kitt, 9 years old, visited the Loves recently. Sawannah came to the Loves in connection with the Fresh Air Fund. She lives in New York on the sixth floor of a seven-story apartment house. The Loves took her camping and to Fun Town while she was here. She had never been camping before so it was a real treat. They plan to have her back next summer. The Fresh Air Fund is always looking for people interested in doing this for children who don't have the chance to get to the country. Anyone interested can call Charlie Lowe and he would be glad to give them the information.

Andrea Wing went to Norway on Monday. While she was there she treated Beverly Stevens to a birthday lunch at Goldstreet Restaurant.

Florence Watson stopped for a short visit with Richard and Andrea Wing on Sunday. Florence lived in So. Woodstock for many years and now lives in Minot. We were glad to catch up on her as we hadn't seen her for a long time.

Rosalie Poland is working at the new Mollycodd Market at Trap Corner. The new business carries antiques, collectibles, arts and crafts, gifts and much more. Rosalie told me that she and the rest of the staff have been real busy and business is very brisk.

Claribel Poland also works at the Mollycodd Market. Claribel is a remarkable person who never seems to run out of energy. She is going to be 81 years young in August, but you would never know it.

The Mollycodd Market, in a renovated barn, is a very interesting place to browse through. They are open Thurs. thru Mon., 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The barn is located just north of Trap Corner. We wish them much success.

Louis Powell, Hale and Bernice Wing, Dixfield visited Alma Hewey on Wednesday.

Gertrude Hutchins went on the bus to Rumford this week.

Thought of the day: Two fishermen sitting on a bridge, their lines in the water, made a bet as to which would catch the first fish. One got a bite and became so excited he fell off the bridge.

"Oh, well," said the other, "if you're going to dive for them the bet's off."

Hannah Kimball and her friend Heidi Hinkley will be going to Castleton College in Vermont this fall.

Albert Foster's geese have been visiting neighbors until one got hit. That one is recovering okay and it put a stop to the visits.

Natalie Lute, Albert's sister, is visiting from Latrobe, Pa. Their RV is at Grace Smith's in Locke Mills and the car takes them visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wilkes of Cumberland visited the Bartlett Homestead on Aug. 1.

Larry and Pam Poland are receiving congratulations on the birth of twin boys, Dylan and Derek.

Vernon Poland is now at Ledgeview Nursing Home. He's been real sick following an operation this spring. We hope he's getting settled in and is getting stronger every day.

Jerald Mason is building a new home on Curtis Hill. Nice spot.

The Historical Society studies World, U.S., Maine and local history. The historical museum has materials on all aspects of historical studies. In fact, our museum is a very reputable research facility. The Historical Society points out that our town once had a livery stable, a carriage shop and a harness shop. The plant sale at the Historical Society will be on Aug. 21 from 1 to 4 p.m. Anyone who wishes to donate house plants or perennials may leave them at the museum from 12:30 to 1 p.m. or with Kathleen McAllister or Anne Crockett at any time. The Historical Society feels there are many customs and traditions that are still useful. What do you like about your town? Have you seen all the tins at the museum? The Society has quite a large collection of them now.

Anne Crockett and Kathleen McAllister watched the museum recently. Francis Brooks helped out.

Franklin Grange 124 held Music and Talent Night on Monday with opening of the Bible and flag presentation first. It was an open meeting. Twenty-eight people were present. The program was as follows: song by all, "We're here for Fun"; opening thought by Lucy Ridley; songs by Bertha Benoit; Laura Hutchins and Charlotte Cole played several tunes on the accordion, harmonica and guitar; skit by Richard Felt and Lucy Ridley; Harry Boyer sang several songs; words of wisdom by Olive Risko, Lucy Robbins, Kathleen McAllister and Peggy Blake; the Grange band played several tunes--Richard Felt, Dot Canwell, Johnny Howe, Carl Brooks; Dot Canwell whistled a couple songs; poem by Lucy Ridley; Althea Fish played the piano; game, guess the candy in the jar--Loretta Hall won; closing thought, Lucy Ridley; Happy Birthday was sung to the ones with August birthdays. The next meeting will be Men's Night.

The Historical Society thanks all who have watched and visited the museum. Your support is always appreciated. Francis and Glennis Brooks gave some cards and paper items to the historical museum.

Fog lifted slowly from the pond this morning but clinging among the forest trees. Just off shore 9 ducks drifted in the vapor, then paddled away to the center of the pond. Two blue herons stood motionless in the water weeds near the back shore. I was having breakfast; they were waiting for theirs. At each slow step one bird lowered its head. It waited, listened, then the sharp bill and long neck shot forward and downward; the wiry body swayed forward on the reed-like legs and the unfortunate prey was in the serrated bill. I saw the flash and a gulp or two; one heron had its breakfast. Both of them flew heavily up the pond to resume their period of waiting.

Some time later the sun came out, touching everything with a warm and innocent light. It turned to a beautiful day. So I took a walk up the Bulldozer Road. I stopped to look at the jewel weed. It's pretty, the hummingbirds like it and so do the bees. It spreads so rapidly that this year I have pulled up a lot of it.

There was a constant buzz of bees. Once two hummingbirds came streaking toward me. They zoomed, uttering a sharp squeak as they flew by. It was the same sound that I often hear in the morning near my bedroom window as they visit the bee-balm. They sometimes make grating sounds, a kind of de-deet.

Later it was clear, cool and scenic. It has been so dry most of the summer that growth rustled as I walked. The rain has seemed to tremble on the brink of afternoon clouds without finding enough strength to spill over.

Arrows of sunlight shot through the trees and the fragrance of warming needles was all around. No brook today where it often babbled.

Chickadee! There he was stretched out flat on a limb in a patch of sunlight, warm on his restless back. He jerked to attention and whisked to the end of the limb, then leaped to the next tree. He then dashed to another limb, perched and proceeded to clean something from his leg. While he was in business he worked carefully over the plume of his tail. He cleaned it and fluffed it until he thought it was perfect. Then giving a wave he wheeled away. Every so often he stopped to look and listen and to let me know he was still there. I think per ounce and per inch there is no small animal that can develop more interest than a red squirrel. He can, in a few minutes sneeze, bark, screech, cough and spit until you'd think he'd explode.

Well, he was finally off on the high, dark road of branches. I was off on my way home leaving the forest chatter-box.

Mr. and Mrs. John Betts recently spent the weekend in No. Conway. John's brother stayed at their home.

The new building on the shore of Mud Pond is now well established.

At the farm on Sunday we celebrated birthdays with a large cake and ice cream. Robert, Jennett and I were the honored ones. Robert just had his and Jennett and I had ours Aug. 3 and 4. It was fun and the cake was decorated with roses and had all our names on it.

Doris Hayes, who lived here in town for many years, is now in the "Paradise" rest home in Gray.

Last week was wildlife week. I saw the moose, a deer, a fox called on me, and a porcupine was by the roadside.

Ann took her mother to Auburn one day to get her glasses.

It is very foggy here as I sit down to type off my news items of the past week, but a sunny, warm day is predicted. It doesn't seem possible that July is gone and today is the second day of August, so guess I'd better get busy.

There will be a dance with the Richard Felt Orchestra furnishing the music at West Paris Grange Hall on Aug. 14. You're sure to have a good time.

Franklin Grange will be having Gentleman's Night on Aug. 16.

Carol and Theresa Andrews were at Mary Lovejoy's on Saturday to pick up some raspberries they had ordered.

Clarabelle Holden from Oxford called on Mary Lovejoy on Sunday.

Mary reports that her raspberries are ripening fast and are quite plentiful. She has had orders for several quarts and has more orders to fill.

SAILING RESULTS

The high point leaders in Sunday's North Pond regatta were Martha Watson of Worthley Pond (340 points), Margaret Mills of North Pond (335) and Bob Davis of Round Pond (190).

The next regatta will be held Sunday, Aug. 1, at the north end of Lake Christopher.

SUDS CRIBBAGE WINNERS

Winners of last week's cribbage tournament at the Suds Lounge were: Larry Risko, first; Mo Ginther, second; Litty Parker, third; and Shannon Tyler, fourth.

The Bethel Library

This week Aaron Cray, Annika Pierce, David Pierce, Chris Duplessis, Chelsea Marshall, Jeff Gavett, Sara Gips, Kate Caddigan, Laura Pivin, Jay Hanscom, Eric Hanscom, Adam Hanscom, Kane Olson, Casey Fleet and Andrew Raymond finished their 20 books for the Summer Reading Program. Congratulations to all! The permission slip for the field trip to the new Children's Museum of Maine is ready. All "September first- through fifth-graders" who finish the program may go on the Aug. 23 trip; younger children will have a party at the library.

A special note to parents of older (third-, fourth-, fifth-grade) children who are struggling to complete their 20 books: the purpose of the Summer Reading Program is to keep kids reading, but not to make reading a chore. It is a good idea to intersperse easier picture books with lengthy chapter books if you feel your child has made a good effort to read all summer, but that goal of 20 books seems impossible to reach. In other words, use your own judgment and common sense in guiding your child's book choices if you feel there has been a real effort to keep reading.

August videos: "Tartuffe"; "Trio"; "Marius"; "Kerouac"; "Dim Sum"; "Fridays of Eternity"; "Clarence Darrow"; "A Taxing Woman"; "Chicago Blues"; "Happy Birthday, Moon."

BETHEL WOMAN HELPS TOWN AND COUNTRY INN WIN GARDENING HONORS

The Mt. Washington Valley Garden Club recently classified the Town and Country Inn in Shelburne, N.H. as having the second best kept grounds from Madison to Shelburne, N.H.

Brenda Taylor of Bethel is grounds director at the inn. She says that all summer people pull over on Route 2 to get a look at the various flower gardens.

Taylor said she has always been interested in planting, since she grew up on her father's commercial apple orchard in Bethel. She and her husband have their own greenhouse and raise annual and perennial seedlings.

Taylor said she also revamped the Eastern Slope Inn garden areas in North Conway, N.H. and did the original planting of the Nestlenook Inn area in Jackson. She is also groundskeeper at McDonald's Home Office in Norway and runs Country Kids, a day care center, in the fall and winter.

STATE TROOPER OPENINGS

For the first time in four years, the Maine State Police are accepting applications for the position of State Trooper.

Colonel Alfred R. Skolfield, chief of the State Police, said, "We're looking for men and women committed to serving the people of Maine." The chief said applications will be accepted for a four-week period, beginning on Monday, Aug. 9 and ending on Sept. 3. Skolfield said he anticipates the State Police Academy will commence by next April.

Skolfield said the minimum qualifications include a high school diploma or equivalent, no major criminal or motor vehicle record and applicants must be age 21 by July 1, 1994.

Following graduation the new troopers will earn a base salary of $1,756 for a 28-day cycle; $1,833 after six months' employment and the top pay for troopers is $2,371 or $30,823 annually.

Applications can be obtained from any Maine Job Service office and should be returned to the Maine Bureau of Human Resources, State House Station #4, Augusta, ME 04333. Applicants must provide proof of age and high school diploma or equivalent with the completed application. Further information is available from the State Police's Personnel Office in Augusta at 624-7056.

OLD HOME DAY PLANNED FOR RUMFORD POINT

The second annual Old Home Day will be held at the Rumford Point Church, Sunday, Aug. 15. Worship will begin at 10:30 and a fellowship potluck lunch will take place at noon.

Last year's event was well attended by many old and new members and friends of the church, including several former ministers of Rumford Point. Correspondence received from those unable to attend but sending greetings was shared as well as many memories and old pictures.

Anyone wanting more information on this event may call 364-7502.

Local studio releases fifth CD

Tourmaline Music, an independent cd and cassette label operating out of The Outlook studio in Bethel has just released their fifth compact disk album, "The Rat Sugar" by Peace Corpse.

Peace Corpse are a Rumford-area based band, playing all original metal/fusion, a combination that includes influences from metal to rap to jazz fusion. "The Rat Sugar" is their CD debut, following a couple of limited release cassettes over the past two years. A single, "Caracas Patrol" was included on last year's Tourmaline compilation CD, "Guilty by Association", and gained airplay on alternative radio for Peace Corpse from Maine to Washington State.

Since that time the local band has developed significantly, according to the producers, and now features Adam Mazza on vocals. Mazza designed the controversial cover art for the CD, and also writes some of the material in conjunction with founding guitarist Pat Malia. Malia developed the concept and material for Peace Corpse's current project with drummer Jason Rowland, and completing the line-up was Rick Thornton on bass.

They approached Ted St. Pierre of The Outlook to produce the album. St. Pierre has worked with such notables as Extreme, Joe Perry, Mission of Burma, and many others at his 24-track Bethel studio, and spent the last five months working with Peace Corpse recording and producing "The Rat Sugar" for the national release on the Tourmaline label.

Free outdoor concert

Peace Corpse will kick-off their tour of the Northeast with an outdoor concert at Sunday River Brewing Company on Sat., Aug. 21. The CD release party will start at 5:30, with live performance beginning at 6. It is free, and open to the public. For more information, contact Tourmaline at 824-3246, or Sunday River Brewing at 824-4ALE.

Peace Corpse are available for interviews in person, or by phone, and copies of "The Rat Sugar" are available for review on request. Please call 824-3246 for arrangements or more information.

ing the acreage report, and there is physical evidence of the crop or land's use.

He said some farmers have not reported their 1993 planted acres this year, and the crop reporting deadline was Aug. 2, 1993.

For farm program participants, the report is mandatory. The report governs the level at which farmers are eligible for program payments and other benefits. "Without it, farmers are not eligible for these benefits," Pike said.

Preliminary certification results indicate that many farm operators in Oxford County have reported their acreage and are eligible for 1993 farm program benefits.

"Farmers who fail to submit a crop report will be credited with zero plantings for their future crop acreage base," ASCS official Pike said.

LOCKE MILLS BLUEBERRY FESTIVAL AT UNION CHURCH

The Locke Mills Union church will hold its annual blueberry festival on Saturday, Aug. 14, at the church. The sale is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. and will feature blueberry pancakes, baked goods, trinkets and treasures.

LATE TAX DEADLINE NEARS

Taxpayers who filed for an automatic extension to file their 1992 tax return have until Aug. 16, 1993 to submit the return and pay the remainder of monies owed.

Those who did not pay the taxes owed with the Form 4868, Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File U.S. Individual Income Tax Return, on April 15, 1993 will owe interest. They may also be charged penalties. Payment arrangements will be considered for those individuals who cannot pay in full by Aug. 16.

Taxpayers with special circumstances, such as hardship, can request an additional two-month extension that will give them until Oct. 15, 1993 to file. To request the additional time to file, taxpayers must send Form 2688 to the IRS by Aug. 16. IRS will advise them in writing if their requests are granted or not.

For assistance or information: visit the local IRS office or call the IRS toll free at 1-800-829-1040.

LATE-FILED ASCS REPORTS

Steven Pike, chairman of the Oxford County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said late-filed crop and land use acreage reports will be accepted as long as the producer pays the cost of verify-

Andover Selectmen cite project savings

By RICH PLANTE

The Town of Andover saved about $63,000 on the addition to the town office and improvement to the Andover Wood Products Road, but the school assessment to SAD44 is $21,984 more than last year, Selectman Chairman Wayne Delano said last week.

The report on the school assessment came during the 11-minute board meeting, while the discussion on the two Maine Jobs Bonds projects took place after the meeting. Delano said he didn't know what effect the increase would have on the tax rate, because the board couldn't do the total tax assessment until the school figures arrived.

The board will make the tax commitment this week. Delano said that it would probably take just one day to set the tax rate. The tax rate is $11.65 per $1,000 property valuation.

Delano said the town received $10,558 from the Federal Emergency Management Agency for spring flood damage. Noting that the total amount to be awarded is $13,942, Delano said most of the repair work has been done on washed-out sections of roads and culverts. Delano said the money "will be a big help to the summer roads account."

Delano said the town received a letter from the Department of Conservation asking for a meeting to verify location of ground water sources. He said the department would contact the board to look at the tax maps.

Selectman Greg Peaslee asked whether the board received the minutes from the dump study committee, of which he is a member. Delano said no.

Delano said the dump is still open, but "it is scheduled to be closed as soon as we can do the things that have to be done." Brian Mills and Glen Conrad are the other two members of the dump study committee, which is examining alternatives for the town.

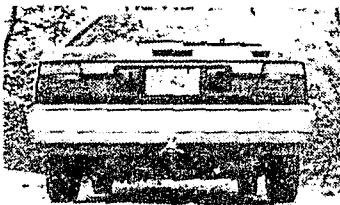

The 18-by-16-foot town-office addition and 1,500 foot road improvement were just finished recently, Delano said. He called the Maine Jobs Bonds projects "an excellent deal for the town."

Delano said the addition at least tripled the size of the town office, and Peaslee added that traffic flow past Andover Wood Products is improved. Peaslee said the road was set back from Andover Wood Products and built to state standards to withstand traffic from heavy trucks.

Delano said the road improvement cost $66,000, with the town contributing half of the total. The road is also known as Number 4 Road and North Main Street. Lars T. Paving of Norway/So. Paris did the road work and Tilcon of Fairfield did the paving, said Delano.

Delano said the town office cost $51,000 with half of that amount provided by the town. He said Martin LaBlanc of Madison had the contract for the addition.

Is Your Car Ready For Summer?

Did you know that Maine's summer air is sometimes as dirty as New York City's? It is. And we've got to do something about it. Here's how you can start:

- Tune your car's engine regularly.
- Choose a fuel-efficient model when buying a car.
- Walk or ride a bike for short trips.
- Drive to work with a friend.

Want more ideas? Write or call us. There are lots of things we can do to clean Maine's air. But they will only work if we all do our part.
